Editorial Comments.

Now lets all pull together for the fair.

Fugitives who left Paris are returning in great numbers.

The Court of Appeals has reconvened after its summer vacation.

Prince George, of Serbia, has been wounded for the second time in battle.

We don't know about the dum-dum bullets, but the war is being reported by dumb-dumb correspondents.

Apparently about 3700 colored votes were cast Monday and a good guess would be that 3400 of them were wet.

The equinoctial rains arrived on time. It began raining early Tuesday evening and it was at it twenty-four hours later.

The three British cruisers sunk carried crews of 775 men each, and is estimated that only 700 were picked up by the crafts near them.

It is well that the county unit law does not work both ways, or a good deal of dry territory would have been made wet by last Monday's elections in three counties.

Lassen has broken loose in its forty-eighth eruption since the extinct volcano came to life May 30. If it keeps up this record its name ought to be changed to Mt. Teddy.

Five German submarines attacked and sank the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue in the North Sea Monday. Survivors report that two of the five submarines were sunk in the fight.

Jules Vedrines, the French aviator, has killed two German airmen in combats in the air. The last one was a few days ago, over the Aisne battlefield. He shot him with an automatic gun.

Jonas Werness, first assistant in the office of Chief Engineer of the L. & N. railroad, died Monday, of apoplexy. He was a Norwegian and came to this country in 1882 and had been with the L. & N. for 30 years.

The women of England have been asked to supply at once 300,000 pairs of socks for the troops in the field. Queen Mary says she will do her part. Go to it, girls, knitting socks is better employment than burning churches.

Reappraisal of the estate of Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the New York World and the St. Louis Post Dispatch at the time of his death, made public, fixes the gross value of the estate at $20,355,985 and the net value at $18,687,545.

Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia, which was abandoned by the Austrians after a heavy defeat, has been occupied by the Servians and Montenegrins. This is the town where Archduke Ferdinand and his wife were assassinated June 28, which caused the war.

The first report of the British operations in France issued since the Germans have been on the retreat has been given out by the War Office. It shows that the two armies fought for days with only the river Aisne between them, and the heaviest part of the work fell upon the artillery divisions.

Another local option election cannot be held in Christian county for three years. The next move of the prohibitionists is likely to be for state wide prohibition. Emboldened by recent victories, it is not improbable that the wets will raise the question that a wet victory makes the whole county wet, and have it passed upon by the Court of Appeals.

Appointed Administrator.

Thos. G. Dade, of Fort Smith, Ark., yesterday qualified as administrator of the estate of the late J. B. Dade, his father.

BRITISH NAVY GIVEN A RUDE SHOCK

In The Daring And Successful Raid Of The German Submarines Across The North Sea.

THE BATTLE FRONT SHOWS NO CHANGE IN FRANCE.

The Russians And Servians Continue Their Successes In Galicia And The Austrians Are Very Hard Pressed--- Third Battle On In The East.

London, Sept. 23.—Paris reports heavy fighting yesterday with no change in the battle front.

Military experts estimate that two million men are at the scene where the battle has been in progress ten days.

The opposing armies continue to gain a little here and lose a little there. These gains may tell in the long run, but have brought no decisive result for either side.

The French official report again lays some stress on the announcement that an advance is being made by the allies' left wing on the right bank of the river Oise. from which point both the public and the military experts look for first indications of how the battle is likely to end.

Although official reports do not go beyond saying that the Germans have been forced to give ground before the French attacks, and speak of Noyon and the district around that city as the center of operations, some correspondents describe the allies' left as extending from just west of Noyon to as far north as Lecatet, from which point, or Peronne, the new army, of which there have been so many reports, but no confirmation, is supposed to be operating to threaten the German right wing.

If this is true, the German right is in a dangerous position, for it cannot extend much farther north or west of St. Quentin. Its position runs thence by way of Chauny and south of Laon to north of Rheims.

On the plateau of Craonne severe fighting has been going on for days, but there is no late information.

In the center, between Rheims and Soissons, which the French occupied early in the week, there has been more desperate fighting, the Germans taking the offensive and, according to the French reports, being repulsed. The Germans also have made some attacks in the Woivre district without success.

The French have captured additional prisoners and supply trains.

The Russians have followed up their successes in Galicia, where a third great battle is about to begin, if it already has not started, by capturing the important fortress of Jaroslau, on the river San, north of Przemyśl, which they are surrounding. Jaroslau commands the passage of the San river, and its possession will assist the Russians in their operations against Przemyśl, where a strong Austro-German force is prepared to offer stubborn resistance, in the hope, at least, of detaining the Russian armies which are needed to take the offensive against Germany.

RACERS DUE HERE TODAY

Motorcycle Riders Make Second Start On 600 Mile Trip From Louisville.

A dozen riders of motorcycles of various makes left Louisville Tuesday morning on a 600-mile endurance race through Kentucky and Indiana, under the auspices of the Kentucky Motorcycle Club, of Louisville. The race was started a few weeks ago, but was abandoned at Mammoth Cave on account of rainy weather and bad roads.

"Cannonball" Baker, the man that traveled on an Indian motorcycle from San Diego, Cal., to New York in 11 days and 12 hours, is in this race. Henry Pardon, of Owensboro, is also a contestant.

The riders were due here this morning but again encountered rain, that stopped them somewhere between here and Louisville.

Hearts rank higher than diamonds, except in the game of love.

sions will assist the Russians in their operations against Przemyśl, where a strong Austro-German force is prepared to offer stubborn resistance, in the hope, at least, of detaining the Russian armies which are needed to take the offensive against Germany.

The Servians report another victory over the Austrians, who have thus far suffered severely on all sides. This engagement occurred near Kroupani, on the Drina, where the Austrians attempted to invade Serbia, but were driven back. This attack accounts for the Servian evacuation of Semlin, as the troops were needed to stem the Austrian offensive movement.

The Servians feel they now can proceed with the invasion of Bosnia and the troops at Visegrad have been ordered to march on Sarajevo.

The Servians and Montenegrins are within ten miles of Sarajevo and the Austrians have made one sortie from the town, according to a Rome dispatch, but quickly turned back in the face of the opposing forces. There is a rumor, too, that Essad Pasha, former Albanian minister of war, as a result of an agreement with the Servian government, will lead an Albanian army into Herzegovina by way of Cattaro.

The daring raid of German submarines across the North Sea, which resulted Tuesday in the sinking of the British cruisers Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy, has diverted attention momentarily from the battlefields of the continent.

This was one of the things the British navy had been led to expect, for the Germans frankly had avowed that their plan was to reduce British naval superiority by submarine raids and the sowing of mines and they have been training their young officers for sallies of this kind.

Nevertheless it came as a shock to Englishmen that big ships such as those sunk could so easily be attacked and destroyed, while the German fleet has remained in safety in its mine and fortress protected harbors.

However, the British fleet must keep the seas to insure Great Britain's food supply, and in doing so must run great risk. The ships sunk, while obsolete, were useful vessels.

Survivors arriving in Holland report that two of the five German submarines were sunk.

J. B. MALLON DIED TUESDAY

Was Formerly I. C. Agent Here And Had Many Friends In City.

J. B. Mallon, former agent of the Illinois Central Railroad in this city, died in a hospital in Louisville Tuesday, following an operation for gallstones. Mr. Mallon was here about two weeks ago on a visit to his friend, Mr. T. L. Morrow. At that time he was sojourning with his family at Cerulean. Mr. Mallon was 49 years old and leaves a widow and two children. Since leaving here he had been stationed at Birmingham and more recently at Louisville.

As Special Judge.

Judge J. T. Hanbery, has been designated Special Judge of the Livingston Circuit Court by Gov. McCreary to sit in two cases in which Judge J. F. Gordon, the regular Judge, is disqualified to sit.

NIGHT RIDERS AGAIN ACTIVE

Northwestern Part of Christian County Invaded By The Band.

NEGRO RUN OUT OF HOME.

Beverly Reynolds Whipped, Shot and Ordered To Leave The Neighborhood.

The depredations of night riders around Dawson have broken out again and Christian county has been invaded.

Beverly Reynolds, colored, living near Macedonia, close to the Hopkins county line, was visited Monday night and run out of the community. Reynolds moved into the neighborhood about two years ago and had worked a small coal mine on a lease and done odd jobs of work for white people. He lived alone in a cabin rented from J. O. Menser.

Last Friday, Reynolds says he found a note in his yard which read: "Sambo—Leave North Christian county by Saturday night, the 19th." This was signed "Possum Hunters."

The following day, or last Saturday, a note was found in Mr. Menser's yard which reads:

"Get shut of that nigger or we will burn him and house, too."

This bore no signature.

About 12 o'clock Monday night the band appeared at Reynolds' house and broke open the door. Reynolds says he was aroused by shooting inside the house and he received a bullet in his hand. The bullet cut a gash through the left palm but it is not thought to have injured the bones. The wound was dressed by physicians here Tuesday. He says the men, who were masked, forced him to go with them to a point three-quarters of a mile away. He was then held by two men while others gave him twenty hard lashes with long switches. He was then warned to leave that section, and allowed to return to his cabin.

He came to Hopkinsville Tuesday and reported the affair. He says he cannot imagine why he was singled out for the attack. The neighborhood is one made up almost entirely of white people.

VIRGINIA GOES DRY

Old Dominion Swept By State Wide By 20,000.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 23.—Early returns from Virginia's election yesterday on state-wide prohibition indicate that the prohibitionists have carried the state by a majority of more than 20,000. Richmond gave 4,382 for prohibition and 6,011 against.

Scattering returns from all the counties show heavy dry majorities.

Graham Gives Up.

After resorting to every known legal procedure in the California courts to place obstacles in the way of his extradition to Tennessee to be tried on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, Benjamin F. Graham, a millionaire lumberman of Los Angeles, Cal., walked quietly into the criminal court at Nashville Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock and surrendered himself. He was accompanied by his attorney, K. T. McConico. His bond was fixed at $10,000, which he at once gave with Jas. E. Caldwell and others signing it.

Louisville Conference.

The Louisville Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, convened yesterday in Louisville, with Bishop John C. Kilgo, of Durham, N. C., and 100 Southern delegates on hand. Hopkinsville Methodists are largely represented.

NOW FOR THE GREAT PENNYROYAL FAIR

Next Week Will Fill The City With Thousands of Visitors From Far And Wide---Something Doing Every Day.

GOOD WEATHER ALL THAT IS NEEDED FOR SUCCESS.

Horse Show Will Eclipse Anything Ever Seen In Western Kentucky, Best Horses Will Be Here---Stall Room Doubled To Meet The Demands.

All eyes are now turned on the next great Pennyroyal Fair, which opens next Tuesday for a run of five days. So many horses are expected that there has been a hustle this week to erect 64 more stalls, bringing the total up to 174, and to make still further provision 50 stalls have been rented from Dr. M. W. Williams, whose stock farm adjoins the fair grounds.

Among the horses entered are four fast pacers that have made 2:08 on different tracks this season. They will all meet here in the 2:10 pace for $1,000 purse.

Committees have visited all fairs within a radius of 200 miles in Kentucky and Tennessee and have secured the best stock from practically all of them and the horse shows at night will break all records for the number and quality of the stock shown.

The new educational building east of the grand stand, 40 by 40, feet is done and this year the city and county schools, under the direction of Prof. J. W. Marion and Supt. L. E. Foster, will have their exhibits in a building to themselves. This will make more room under the grand stand for floral exhibits. Entries in this class will close Monday morning and some one will be there to receive them.

The poultry department, which is in charge of Dr. C. H. Tandy, will have 1,000 birds, about 300 more than last year. It will be the biggest poultry show in the state this season.

JAMES WEST HONORED

Made a Member of The State Campaign Committee.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23.—Tom Rhea, chairman of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, has named the other members of that committee, ten in number, and announces that from now until the election in November a vigorous fight will be waged in the interest of the Democratic nominees.

The campaign will be formally opened Monday at Somerset, he said, at which he expects Democrats from every nook and corner of the State. The rally will be presided over by Gov. James B. McCreary, and speeches will be made by former Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic nominee for United States Senator; Senator Ollie M. James, Senator Johnson N. Camden, Judge Rollin Hurt and others. Arrangements are being made to serve 10,000 Democrats at the barbecue.

Those named by Chairman Rhea as members of the Campaign Committee are Senator Ollie M. James, Gov. James B. McCreary, Claude B. Terrill, of Trimble county, Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives; William C. Montgomery, banker, of Elizabethtown; W. O. Davis, of Versailles, secretary of Senator Camden; John F. Hager, Ashland; James West, Hopkinsville; Ben Smith, Somerset; James Spradlin, Prestonsburg, and Dr. Milton Board, Louisville.

Mr. Rhea said that already he had named county chairman in ninety-nine of the 120 counties of the State, and that he will name the others within the next few days, making a perfect working organization throughout the State.

AT THE OLD TAVERN

Rich Married Woman Visits Country Home and Finds Former Lover Dead.

By BLYMER CHAPMAN.

She was esteemed the most fortunate woman in the world. And indeed she looked it. The wife of the wealthiest man in the city, who eagerly gratified her every whim; beautiful, possessed of faultless taste and the means to minister unto it; courted, admired, acknowledged the social leader; with every avenue of pleasure, travel, dress, society, philanthropy—everything open before the magic touch of Manson's millions and Manson more than willing to use the magic of his millions for any purpose she desired—what more could any woman want?And yet Margaret Manson sat in her blue and gold boudoir with leaden heart and looked out into the shimmering sunlight and shivered as might a prisoner in a dungeon who saw the golden gleams of the sun outside, but knew it never could be her's.It was one of her blue days—that is about all there was about it—and yet she had had so many blue days of late that the sunlight did not appeal to her as it used to in the old days. The worst of it was that the luxurious surroundings had begun to pall upon her and she had fallen into a dreadful habit of late of asking herself continually: "Was it worth while?"In vain did she shrug her patrician shoulders and reply: "Of course it is worth while; what else could I have done?" Ever and again came back the question: "Was it worth while?"This afternoon there was upon her the smell of the new mown hay and the smell of the new milk in the clean little dairy and the smell of the grass and all the growing things—aye, and the smell of the barnyard and all the living things therein, including Jake, the hired man. And these smells and the visions they inspired carried her back to the old place out in the Genesee valley and to all the happy days of her youth when she trailed ever in the wake of a mighty star whose name was idealism and over which towering so far into the heavens as almost to be lost sight of, rose her castles in the air.Ah, finally these castles had been reduced to one—but that one castle had been so much more splendid than all the rest that they all looked cheap beside it. And then—but why pursue vain regrets and drag back the skeletons of the past.Anyway the mind of madame was thoroughly upon the country—the old Genesee valley this afternoon and it seemed to her that if she could not get a whiff of the sweet, fresh air she must stifle.Of a sudden she arose with determination and rang for her maid."Pack one trunk with the simplest things. I am going away for a few days. There will be no society, no occasion for any clothes excepting the most simple—do you understand?"Felice understood—that was why Felice had lasted so long in madame's service.In the meantime Mrs. Manson had descended to the apartments of her liege lord."If you have no objections, sir," she said, "I think I will run down to the old place for a day or so—I am hungry for a whiff of the old Genesee air.""Why, sure," he replied, heartily, turning from his market reports to devour his handsome wife with his eyes. "Awful sorry I can't go along but that P. C. T. & L. B. deal is coming off in the next few days and I daren't take my eye off the gun. Take the maid with you?""No," she replied, decisively, "I want to go alone.""All right," he replied, indulgently.
Then puckering his brows: "Where you goin'? You know the old place is—who the thunder owns the old place, anyway—nobody I know.""I do not intend to stop at the old place," she said, calmly. "I just want to go down and see it all again—and smell it. I shall stop at the tavern."He received this with a peal of laughter. "Oh, get away," he snorted between his laughs. "Not that old unpainted barn in the town. Why, woman alive, you are not thinking of going there alone?""Exactly," she replied. "There is no danger nor any disgrace possible as it is a most respectable place. The only thing that could possibly happen to me would be a little discomfort—and that can't hurt me much in a few days.""Oh, well, as you please," he replied, turning back to his market reports.
Then as she swept from the room he looked up and sighed a puzzled sort of a sigh."And she might go to New York and stop at the Waldorf and see the opera just as well. The women certainly lo beat all time."Hence it was that Margaret Manson found herself on the platform of the little red-painted station, a day later and negotiating with old Bill Simpson to take her to the tavern. Already had she got the fragrance of the country in her nostrils and she prolonged the happy operation as long as possible because Bill was one of her earliest recollections and she remembered the things he would do to get an extra dime from a hapless traveler. So she took her time to dicker with Bill,Finally, having beaten Bill down to the lowest price he ever had been known to take—the lowest price any man could haul a person for at the Corners, and hold up his head, she got into the vehicle with great glee. Already her depression had dropped from her and the quick blood of youth bounded again in her veins.As she alighted from the bus she paralyzed Bill by dropping a dollar in his grizzled paw and declining to take the change he reluctantly counted out for her.Then she tripped into the old tavern and was assigned to her great, barn-like room from which she emerged almost immediately and took a walk across the old fields filled with so many beautiful memories, and away down by the creek, where her happiest moments had been spent—where she had won the one true love of her life—and lost him. It was a delightful and melancholy afternoon.
Somehow his presence had seemed to be actually beside her and all the tender moments of the old courtship had recurred over and over again as she passed the spots where they had taken place. Once or twice she had turned and spoken to him as though he actually were beside her.Arriving back at the tavern, she threw off her shawl and resolved to go into the old parlor from which there was a perfect view of the winding river. The landlady was busy, so she went along by herself, knowing the way full well—indeed, how many dances she had attended at the old tavern and in that identical parlor.She was surprised to find the door closed—she never had seen it closed before. Opening the door, she stepped in and nearly ran directly into a casket standing in the middle of the room. She recoiled with a cry—but not before she had caught sight of the face beneath the glass.Merciful heaven, it was his face—the face of Duncan Mitchell, the old sweetheart she had won and lost. But, oh, how old and careworn and sad—and the locks on the temples, how gray and thin. Involuntarily she went down on her knees beside the casket.
She touched the glass above the face.
It moved. She slid it clear open and leaning forward pressed her lips on those of the lifeless clay.Presently in came good Mrs. Bingham, the hostess, and all full of contrition that her aristocratic guest should have run into such a chamber of horrors. No, the guest was not at all offended or alarmed—only curious.
Who was the man in a coffin in a public house? Had he no friends? How came he here?Ah, the story was short. He formerly had lived here, but had gone away many years ago and his people had all died since. He had been a member of the life saving service on the great lakes and had met his death in a heroic effort to save the lives of others. He had ample funds for burial, but left the request that he be buried in the old town, "where I felt the only joy I ever knew," as the paper found on him said."And there's a romance," whispered Mrs. Bingham, coming close to her guest and purring. "The paper reads:
'And if there should be one who gave me the one glimpse of heaven I ever had and then shut it from me—should this one know of my death, I want her to know that the girl she saw me with in the old orchard on that terrible June night, and whose presence and whose kisses I could not explain, was my sister. Had I explained, it would have ruined my sister's life and that of her husband. As it was, it ruined mine—and possibly Margaret's. But I was bound in honor—and afterwards
Margaret would not let me explain.
I want her to know, however, that no other woman's lips have touched mine and that I die with her name on my lips and in my heart.' Ain't it just like a story?""Was it a moan the landlady heard?
She turned quickly, but the patrician face of the guest made no sign."When they buried him the coffin was literally swamped with roses—where they came from nobody knew except that they came by express and bore the mark of a great florist."Did you enjoy yourself at the old tavern, my dear?" bantered Mr. Manson a few days later when his aristocratic wife appeared at the breakfast table."Hilariously," replied Mrs. Manson.

Moving Pictures Continue More in Demand Than Ever.

Some Interesting Figures Forwarded by American Consuls in Europe—Tastes of Peoples Are Shown to Vary Widely.

American consuls in European and other foreign countries have recently been sending reports to Washington on the motion picture industry, these reports showing that east and west, north and south, the "movies" now hold sway and are playing a star role in the amusements of the nations.

From many places comes the consular declaration that the attractions at the film play theaters are not merely one of the chief amusements, but the chief amusement. From Nuremberg, Germany, for instance, Consul George Nicolas Ifft writes that the moving picture "has advanced to first place among the people of Bavaria." In Munich there are 32 theaters, with a total seating capacity of 4,650, and a yearly sale of 3,000,000 tickets, while in Nuremberg there are 14 theaters, with a seating capacity of 3,400. The other large Bavarian cities all have numerous theaters.

In regard to comparison with other amusements, Consul George N. Ifft writes that in the city of Hof the total attendance at places of public amusement for one year was 209,551. Of this total, 138,610 was attendance at film shows. Attendances at other amusements were: Theaters, 38,000; concerts, 8,500; public dances, 4,000; circuses, 7,000. In the city of Puerth in one month the attendance at the "movies" was 14,000, while for that month and the two preceding months the attendance at all other public places of amusement, including ordinary theaters, was but 12,600.

From Great Britain come reports that, while the motion-picture theaters are constantly increasing their hold on the public, American films of cowboy life—well received not long ago—are beginning to lose popularity.

HIS ROLE IS COMEDY LEAD

Few of the Photoplay Stars Are More Popular Than Clever Mr. Eddie Redway.

Eddie Redway, who is now playing leading comedy roles, was for a year connected with Arthur Roberts at the Lyric theater, London, England, where he played in "The Modern Don Quixote" and later under the management of Mr. George Edward, in the famous comedy "The Messenger Boy."

Eddie Redway.

Mr. Redway is well known in Scotland, Ireland and Wales. It was during a visit to Chicago that Mr. Redway was engaged to play leading roles and much is expected of him, too, and much he is going to give us and the photoplay public—the laughing kind—that you will be pleased to see.

Specialist on Railroad Photoplays. J. P. McGowan, the producer, has become known as a specialist on railroad photoplays. He has produced and is still producing them from every angle, and the members of his company are almost as well versed in railroad lore as he is himself. Helen Holmes, his leading woman, declares she almost lives on, in, around, or under trains.

To Produce "Fantasma." An eastern company has acquired the filming rights to the Hanlon brothers' extravaganza, "Fantasma." The fantastic effects and the trick scenes are said to lend themselves to perfect photographic reproduction.

No Inducement. Circe—it seems that the tango craze is passing. Terpsichore—Of course. Who wants to dance the old thing now? Why, even the clergy have decided that there is nothing at all improper about it!—Judge.

Essentials First. "What would you do when first employed to bring an action?" asked an examiner of a young candidate for the legal profession. "Ask for a retaining fee," was the prompt reply. He passed.—Livingston Lance.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so bad I expected death at any time. I could not sit up in bed, I suffered from womanly troubles. The New Agriculture.

The term "new agriculture" applies to the farming methods that have been made possible within the past twenty years or so by the advance of science. "Dry farming," the "inoculation" of soils, the amazing results of irrigation and of experimentation at the state and government agricultural stations; "intensive" farming, deep plowing, seed selection, crop rotation and the application of nitrogenous elements have completely revolutionized the farmers' art, giving them returns that were not dreamed of a few decades ago.

When you incline to have new clothes, look first well over the old ones, and see if you cannot shift with them another year, either by scouring, mending or even patching, if necessary. Check your fall cough or cold at once—don't wait—it may lead to serious lung trouble, weaken your vitality and develop a chronic lung ailment. Get a bottle of Dr. Beil's Pire-Tar-Honey to-day; it is pure and harmless—use it freely for that fall cough or cold. If Baby or Child are sick give it to them, it will relieve quickly and permanently. It soothes the irritated throat, lungs and air passages. Loosens phlegm, is antiseptic and fortifies the system against colds. It surely prevents cold germs from getting a hold. Guaranteed. Only 25c at your druggist.—Advertisement.

Enamelware Cement.

For mending enamelware pots and pans where a hole has been made or the enamel has been chipped off, the following is effective: Equal parts of soft putty, finely sifted coal ashes and sifted table salt. Mix all together and pack it into the hole. Place the mended article on the stove with a little water in it until the cement gets hard. It never fails, and it becomes as hard as the enamel itself.

BOTH COLLEGE BRED

But His Fiancee's Valedictory on Microbes and Kissing Was

By FRANK H. MELOON.

Copyright, 1914, by Daily Story Pub. Co.
Twenty times in the past two days Hortense Heaton made up her mind to definite action; and 20 times, of course, she had allowed her thoughts to vacillate backward to the old doubt, the old indecision. "It is so supremely ridiculous," she said to herself softly. "And the complaint seems so absurd and so difficult to bore into words. I can't tell Robert that he doesn't love me enough. His adoration is too evident in his eyes for me to doubt it, but I'm not a marvelous image, and I don't want to be adored as if I were an angel. I know I'm not. I know I'm just ordinary flesh and blood, but Robert doesn't seem to think so. I've tried every-way I can think of to convince him, but it's no use."

Miss Hortense flung herself face downward on the most tempting piece of furniture in the room, burying her pretty nose in the very middle of a pillow stuffed with fir balsam. She did not attempt to keep back the tears which forced themselves to her adorable blue eyes or to choke down the sobs which convulsed a throat as saintly and fair as any model's.

"What would Robert say if he could see me now?" she thought, a smile like sunshine in the midst of summer rain flashing across her face. "Just because we're both college bred, he thinks he must act differently than other people. And he was so ready to believe my jest about the danger of microbes in kissing, that I've never been kissed once since we became engaged. He says hugging's a demonstration of rudimentary affection, and laughs at holding hands as something peculiar to the lower classes. Well, I'd just like to have a little rudimentary affection, and if somebody doesn't hold my hand pretty soon, why, I'm just going slumming!"

Having finished her cry, Miss Hortense felt decidedly better. She sat up and began to fling soft pillows into new positions with athletic vigor.
"The idea!" she exclaimed, sharply.
"I don't see what makes Robert so stiff and prim. He's a good deal like an old maid since he got those horrid degrees of A. M. and Ph. D.
What good will they do him, anyway?
He's got the money to have a good time without them; and if he hadn't it now, he could share mine as soon as we're married. I guess dad will give me enough for both. As it is, I can truthfully say I'd rather have been born without a silver spoon in my mouth, if all the silver spoon is going to bring me a man gone daft against kissing and hugging, and holding hands. Being engaged to a man like that is what our Mamie would call 'the raw limit!'"

Her brain formed a mental picture of Robert Rouin, A. M., Ph. D., tall and athletic figure, clad in perfect fitting evening clothes, just as she had last seen him. Severely set Centaur-like upon his Gibson-modeled face, but it was the severity of thought.

"Why," continued the girl indignantly, "can't he cast it off for a few minutes when he is with me? He loves me; I don't doubt that. But it is like the terrible admiration of Zeus.
It is as if a god were making love to an mortal, half fearing to sully himself by touching the inferior being.
I'm sure Robert hasn't that feeling, but that's exactly what it's like."

Miss Hortense recalled the fact that her unsatisfactory fiancé had given him varsity letter on the football eleven. She also summoned to mind several stories of his athletic ability which had not a little influenced her decision when she had to make up her mind whether to say yes or no to the great question which comes at least once to every girl.

Since his classmates had separated and scattered to the four corners of the earth, Robert Rouin, A.
M., Ph. D., had been continually, though unconsciously, demonstrating the difference which existed between himself and Robert Rouin, right tackle of the varsity eleven. It was, perhaps, accounted for by the fact that his mind had turned to newer and braver channels; that he was confronted by obstacles of infinitely greater difficulty and moment; and that, being always set and obstinate and perseveringly stubborn in his way, he was bound to surmount them.

"Now, what shall I write?" Miss Hortense asked herself, dipping a pearl-handled pen into the cut-glass ink well at her right hand. She poised the pen above the paper for a moment undecidedly. Then she laid it down carelessly, not noting that she dropped it into a box of monogrammed writing paper, over which an ink blot spread itself alarmingly.

"It has come to the point," asserted the young lady, as if seeking to convince herself that her action was perfectly just, "it has come to the point when I must break off this engagement; and it's so ridiculous, too, when I love Robert, and he loves me.
But the gist of the situation is that we aren't fitted for each other. We're opposite. It would drive me wild to have to live with Robert the rest of my life and be admired from a distance. I want to do part of the admiring myself, and I am obvious enough for doing it in Robert's way."

I suppose it will make the poor boy dreadfully unhappy, but I've heard that men get over affairs of the heart very easily. I wouldn't do it, if I thought Robert would feel very very much cut up over it, but it somehow seems to me as if he is the sort to find plenty of solace in his philological researches. Anyway, he's perfectly set on a trip into the South seas, so that he can study the Poly-nesian tongue at first hand."

As Miss Hortense reached this stage in her soliloquy, she glanced at a little jeweled timepiece, suddenly recalling an engagement to attend a production of amateur theatricals by the alumni of Robert's university. She had barely time to make her preparations. Everything else was immediately laid by, and a half hour later found her at Conservatory hall awaiting the rise of the curtain.

"Did you know your fiancé is to take the leading part?" asked Miss Ridge, her boon companion.
"Why, no," admitted Miss Hortense,
"he never said anything to me about it."

"Well," rejoined the other, "it was not known until the last minute that it would be necessary. Mr. Rouin had taken the part once before, and his old friends wouldn't listen to his saying no."

The select audience that afternoon was accustomed to witnessing the performances of the world's leading stars, but it was unanimously conceded that the part of the passionate lover had never been so perfectly depicted as it was by Robert Rouin. It was so natural that, in the language of the press agent, the audience forgot to applaud.

"I congratulate you, Hortense, on having a lover like that!" exclaimed Miss Ridge, roguishly, yet more than half in earnest.

The face of Hortense flushed crimson, but inward agony was her portion. "Oh, if it were true, if it were true!" she exclaimed, again and again, but always with the realization of how very far it was from being true. It is, however, very seldom that a sensible American girl fails to accomplish what she desires to achieve; and this is especially true in love affairs. In a flash of pure inspiration a plan outlined itself vividly before the girl's eyes. She laughed aloud. That night it was carried into execution.

When Robert Rouin, A. M., Ph. D., called at 7:30 o'clock that evening, he seated himself in the usual chair, and, faultlessly attired, without so much as an eyelash awry, began his customary long-distance admiration of his fiancée, Miss Hortense, with a look of determination to do or die in her eyes, after a few minutes' conversation, rose from her chair, walked over to her lover, and plumped herself into his lap with a solid drop of 135 pounds that fairly made the floor creak and the chair threaten to give way at every rung.

At the same time she threw both her shapely arms around his neck, and, careless of germs, planted a resounding smack on his lips, which,
as soon as he recovered from his first astonishment, he made haste to return with interest.

"And you aren't play acting now, Robert?" she asked, anxiously, after a time.

"Not a bit, little girl," he replied, heartily. "You see, I thought you were really opposed to kissing and holding hands and lovers' embraces. You said so, I remember, in your valedictory."

"I said a lot of things in that I didn't mean," was the girl's reply.
"And, Robert, I can't tell you what I started to write you this afternoon."

But after awhile she did. She had no fault to find in that quarter since she explained why she had mentally referred to him as her unsatisfactory fiancé.

"Read the Eternities."

The only large values are those in which our ancestors participated. The oldest of wonders is the greatest—life. An iron-clad, as such, is a commonplace beside a ship, and society merely as society is a more stupendous fact than Rome or England. The illad is less remarkable than speech, and the aeroplane is only a mote in the sky. Landscape, the family, the nation, religion—their origin are lost in the silence of a gray antiquity. The now—the present—is indeed sacred; but its sacredness is inappreciable to those who are circumscribed by its limits; it is reserved for minds that escape its bounds. "Do not read the Times!" said Thoreau, in words that become more memorable the less they are remembered, "read the eternities." —O. W. Firkins in Atlantic.

The Junkville Moralist.

"Well," remarked the proprietor of the Junkville general store, as he closed the cash drawer and resumed his place behind the stove, "the women want to vote at the polls tomorrow." The moralist twisted a plug of black tobacco between his molars and proceeded to chew himself into a logical frame of mind before replying.

"Cain't say I approve. 'Tain't respectable. What's the world comin' to, anyway? Women at the polls?
'Twon't be no fitten place for a woman."

"Why?"
"Because I'm goin' to get drunker'n a billed owl and raise all manner o' trouble!"—Judge.

Talks in All Tongues.

"We are thinking of giving old Gotrox the degree of doctor of languages."
"He's no linguist."
"No; but he has $40,000,000, and

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION ASKS PRAYER FOR PEACE.

By the President of the United States of America, a Proclamation: Whereas, great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another, and war now draws millions of men into battle whom the counsels of statesmen have not been able to save from the terrible sacrifice; and

Whereas, in this, as in all things, it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and succor of Almighty God, humbly ourselves before Him, confessing our weakness and our lack of any wisdom equal to these things; and

Whereas, it is the especial wish and longing of the people of the United States in prayer and counsel and all friendliness to serve the cause of peace;

Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the fourth day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication, and do request all God-fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God that, overrul-ing the counsel of men, setting straight the things they can not govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, He vouchsafe his children healing peace again and restore once more that concord among men and nations, without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship, nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world; praying also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our wilfulness and many errors, and leads us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that urge and make wise.

In witness whereof, I have here-unto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this eighth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-ninth.

WOODROW WILSON,

By the President.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN,
Secretary of State.

Shot as a Traitor.

Rome, Sept. 20, Via Paris, Sept. 23.
—The Giornale D'Italia publishes a telegram from Vienna, which reports that Lieutenant Marshal Wodianski, who was of Slav origin, was court-martialed and shot for an alleged understanding with the Russians. The station master at Lemberg, a man named Redi, accused of giving information to the enemy, was also shot, according to the dispatch. He was a brother of Col.
Redi, who committed suicide in the spring of 1913, when he was accused of being a spy. Gen. Frerach, the same dispatch says, who was removed from a command of a division of cavalry, after it had been almost annihilated, also committed suicide.

Beazley-Garrott.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William Walton Garrott to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Thomas Garrott, to Mr. Edmund James Beazley, Jr., of

be at the home of Mr. E. H. Garrott on Thursday October 6th. Mr.
Beazley is a prominent merchant.
His bride-to-be is one of Christian county's loveliest girls.

THE WAR AND THE AMERICAN FARMERS.

Will the European war, by causing an increased demand for agricultural products, benefit the farmers of this country? It is by no means certain that it will.

The savings of the world in one year may amount to $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000; the war will destroy that amount of wealth in three or four months. Consider the resulting scarcity of capital throughout the world, the consequent restriction of production, the diminished supply of labor, the increase in the rate of interest. Farmers cannot escape the effects of such economic disturbance.

Suppose that farm products do advance; does it follow that there will be real increase in profit to the farmer? Will farmers as a group lose more than they gain on account of the higher prices they must pay for everything they buy? Farmers are consumers as well as producers; they are buyers as well as sellers, even of agricultural products.

Suppose that wheat goes to $1.50 or $2 a bushel. How many farms in one hundred raise wheat? Only twenty-three. Consequently, seventy-seven farmers must pay exorbitant prices to twenty-three farmers for one of the principal articles of food.
Most wheat farmers buy their flour from the merchant; they will have to surrender in that way some of the profit that they may receive for un-ground wheat.

No farm produces everything, or nearly everything, that its owner needs. Potatoes grow on only one-half of all the farms, and sweet potatoes on only eighteen per cent of them. Cotton may go to fifteen or twenty cents a pound, but we must remember that less than one-quarter of the farms raise cotton. Sugar, dry beans and rice are raised on only a small proportion of our farms.
Moreover, if the war continues, the prices of clothing, and of almost all sorts of manufactured goods, will rise.

It is not even certain that there will be an increased effective European demand for our farm products, not excepting wheat. Europe has suspended credit payments and will take only gold; consequently it must pay gold. As a rule, the nations at war are not paying, and the loan market of this country has been closed to them. Cotton manufacturing is paralyzed in the warring nations, which have taken yearly about two-thirds of our crop. Fruits have been exported from the United States to the countries at war to the value of $20,000,000 a year. That demand has ceased absolutely.

We have no meat that we can afford to export. If we do export it, the price of meat, and of meat animals, will advance, and there will be a wasteful slaughter of immature cattle. It would be a misfortune both to the farmers and to the nation to increase or even to continue the over-slaughter of meat animals that has occurred in recent years.

The European war cannot really benefit the farmers of the United States. Small groups of producers here and there may profit by it, but when the actual results of the great upheaval begin to make themselves felt, the farming population as a whole must face a diminished market and lower prices.—Youth's Companion.

Patient Watching Under Nest of Pewees Led at Last to Their Undoing.

Benjamin L. Dulaney, naturalist and owner of coal properties, who owns a big reservation partly situated in the city of Bristol, Tenn., where birds from all parts of the country have found an asylum, was telling an incident which showed that, with all the protection human beings may throw about birds, a chance action of those same protectors may defeat their own purpose.

"I have seldom regretted anything more than an incident one day last week," said Mr. Dulaney. "I have been much interested in a pair of pewees, and the fact that year after year they have built their nest in the same spot. There is only one tiny place on the whole of the porte cochere of my house which a cat cannot reach, and this they selected. Twice a year they reared a brood, and in the spring they always came back. The cat strolled about and glanced covetously up as the father bird came home with his wife's dinner, but the pewees remained safe.

"But one night last week my son came home late and left the automobile standing under the porte cochere all night. When I went down in the morning I noticed that the top of the car was only two feet below the pewees' nest. Then my gaze was caught by a mess of twigs and feathers I saw, partly on the top of the machine, partly on the ground. I looked in the car. The cat was curled up on the seat in sleek, contented slumber. The only chance she had had to get at the birds she had taken."

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

"Gee! Now, why can't dey have dis kind of wedder about de middle of December when it's so blame cold an' have a nice freezin' spell now?"

FALSE ALARM.

The sexton was showing the holiday party round the church, when some one asked him if he feared a suffragette attack. "I'd quite a turn the other morning," said the sexton. "I see one of our ladies going in the church with a hammer in 'er hand. I crept up behind her and says 'Not 'ere.' She turns around quite upset, and says, 'How dare you think I'm going to break windows? It's that Mrs. X who shares my pew and will use my hassock. I'm going to nail it to the floor in my place.' And she did that."—Manchester Guardian.

THE HORRORS OF WAR.

"Any new war news on the wire?" asked the managing editor of the Evening Ochre. "Nothing doing," replied the telegraph editor. "Well, change a word in the scare head over the old stuff and get out an extra," ordered the M. E.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"I don't know what to call this new runner we've planted." "Why not call it the Marathon vine?"

CORRECTION.

"Smith is a man, I am told, of sedentary habits." "No such thing! He never touches a drop."

A THIRSTY LUMINARY.

"You can't hitch your wagon to one star, I know." "Why not?" "Not if it is a water wagon."

NO PAUSE ABOUT IT.

"She certainly is leading him a dance." "Well, there's no hesitation step in it."

DOG IS TRAMP'S ONE FRIEND

When Landlord Gave "Move On" Orders the Animal Objected and Remained Victor.

A tramp was sitting on a fallen tree along the banks of Alum creek one Sunday afternoon, and beside him lay a big coach dog. The owner of the land, who happened to come along just as the observer was getting a picture of the pair, ordered the tramp from the place. The tramp, however, looked up indifferently at the landlord and made no effort to obey the command.

The owner then proceeded to pick up a large stick to drive the tramp away. Just at this time the big dog raised his head and began to growl. As the man came forward to use the weapon upon the vagrant the dog arose and stationed himself in front of his master. In the animal's eye there came an angered look, and he growled viciously at the landlord, who lost his nerve and retreated, promising, however, that he would have a constable attend to the tramp.

After the owner had departed the tramp lazily lay down by the log, stretched his arms and proceeded to take a nap. The dog lay down beside him, placed his head across the tramp's knees and watched the landlord until he was out of sight. Every time a passerby would happen to walk near the tramp the dog would raise his head and watch him until he had passed.—Columbus Dispatch.

HAD NO CHANCE TO LOSE

Young Man's Wager Manifestly Unfair, Owing to the Conditions That Were Imposed.

There was no sound except the faint and regular tick of a watch. Otherwise silence and gloom pervaded the elegantly furnished drawing room.

In one chair sat a beautiful girl, her lips tightly closed, her eyes staring straight before her, and her every muscle tense with a powerful effort of self-control. In another sat a young man whose face expressed seriousness but confidence. In his hand he held an open watch which he observed closely, only raising his eyes now and then to glance at the beautiful girl, who seemed to be in such agony.

Five seconds, ten, fifteen, twenty seconds passed. The position of neither the young man nor beautiful girl had changed. Suddenly her eyes gleamed with a wild light, her bosom heaved, she clasped her hands convulsively, and—"I must speak!" burst from her bloodless lips.

"Twenty-four seconds," said the young man, as he closed the watch and put it back into his pocket. "You lose the caramels by six seconds exactly."

He had bet on a sure thing, but she wot not.

A PASSING SALUTE.

HOW COULD THEY?

"I understand women are going to wear their skirts fuller this year." "How can they? If they were filled any more they'd bust."

IN THE KITCHEN.

"I never escape without a beating," moaned the Egg. "Everybody's always stringing me," lamented the Bean.

NOT SO.

She—People are saying that you married me for my money alone. He—They are mistaken. You had quite a lot of real estate.

Reggie—Can nothing induce you to change your mind and marry? Miss Keen—Evidently not, Reggie; haven't you tried and failed?

GOT THEIR ITEMIZED BILL

But, Considering the Cost, Englishman in the Future Will Accept the American Method.

A prominent Philadelphia attorney is not lacking, either in humor or in what the Scot calls "canniness."

Some years ago he was employed by a wealthy English syndicate, which had many and valuable investments in the United States, to look after interests here. Since it was impossible to tell in advance just the nature and character of the services he would render no price was agreed upon in advance. After a year's attention to its affairs in a manner highly satisfactory to the syndicate he presented a bill for the year's work for $10,000, lumping the whole thing, as is the custom of high-class American lawyers, instead of rendering an itemized statement of the several acts of service.

In England, however, a lawyer itemizes his bill like a corner grocer, putting in a charge for every letter written and even for postage stamps used. Accordingly the Philadelphia attorney's method did not suit the conservative Britons, who, wedded to their immemorial custom, returned the bill, saying they would not consider it unless duly itemized.

Without a word he put a clerk to two hours' work making out such an itemized statement. When completed, he attached the following:

"To making out itemized statement, as per instructions, $250." The bill was paid—with the suggestion that thereafter they would be content to follow the American method.

"My dear fellow, you rich men are lucky. Here when you want a country home you have all kinds of sites about you." "Yes—including parasites."

HE DOESN'T HAVE TO.

"This plant—belongs to the begonia family." "Ah! And you are taking care of it while they are away."

MAKES GOOD USE OF LASSO

Barge Captain in New York River Keeps Rope Handy for "Kids Always Tumbling In."

Capt. William Brockway, in charge of the Mary McCarthy, a grain barge, lying at Sixty-third street and the East river, believes in being prepared for all emergencies, so when John Caciopo fell off the stringpiece and came up gurgling and yelling as loud as his seven-year lungs would let him the captain merely smiled. Every one else ran around wildly.

"That's easy," commented the captain. He stepped to the cabin and took from its peg one of the numerous coils of rope hanging there. He arranged it quickly but carefully, whirled a big loop around his head a few times and then dropped a nice round circle over the sputtering boy's head. He gave the rope a couple of quick jerks, the noose tightened, and in less than a minute from the time the boy had gone overboard the captain was pulling him out of the water.

Policeman Brown had summoned Doctor Beard from Flower hospital, but when the physician arrived about all the boy needed was a good spanking. His mother looked willing and capable for that duty.

"I always have a rope with a noose ready in summer," said Captain Brockway, as they took the boy away. "Kids are always tumbling into the water—and I'm always pulling 'em out."—New York Herald.

THE ANARCHISTIC SPIRIT

De Whiz—Well, it depends largely upon one's religious scruples and command of language.

CHATELLETS.

The word "chattellets" is of French origin and means goods of any kind. Chattellets were originally divided into real and personal chattellets.

Chattellets real were property annexed to or concerning real estate, as a lease for years for land. Personal chattellets were such things as were movable, as animals, jewelry, grain, machinery, goods and property of like kind. Chattel mortgages were not in use as early as real estate mortgages, and the reason is that at first all property of value was in the land.

The first use of personal property as security for the payment of a debt was by putting the property up as a pledge, in which case the creditor held the property and returned it to the owner when the money was paid.

HER POST.

Margaret—How does your friend Mrs. Brown stand on the suffrage question?

Anna—She's doing picket duty.

Margaret—Doing picket duty—what, for suffrage?

Anna—Oh, no she's on the fence. —Christian Register.

HIS REGRETS.

"How do you like the young lady's execution on the piano?"

"I am sorry for the music she is murdering."

ITS LOCALITY.

"Pop, I want to know something."

"Well, Jimmy?"

"Is the washing of the waves done on the seaboard?"

LITERALLY.

"He gave me but a bald statement about that business affair."

"What did he say?"

"That its fate hung on a hair."

IN BOTH SENSES.

"When money talks what does it say?"

"I guess its principal remark is 'Buy-buy.'"

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

McCracken County.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 23.—By a majority of 818 the county and city went wet in Monday's local option election, which passed off quietly, no disorder being reported anywhere. The majority, which was decisive, was a surprise to the leaders for local option and many wets, who believed that the contest would be close. The city gave a majority of 1,382 for wet. The county outside the city went for the dries by a majority of 364. The vote was counted quickly, all of the returns being in before 6 o'clock.

Davies County.

Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 23.—The "wets" won in Davies county and the city of Owensboro by a majority of 649. The vote in the city was: "Wets," 2,240, and "dry," 1,228. In the county: "Dries," 3,030, and "wets," 2,700. When the result of the election became known, thousands of "wet" advocates paraded the streets headed by the Third regiment band. The election was marked with a good deal of bitterness on both sides. Davies county, which raises much corn, is one of the biggest distillery centers in the country. The "wets" argued that every "dry" vote was a vote against the county's prosperity.

Really Beyond Help.

Confucius, the Chinese philosopher, though he lived nearly 2,500 years ago, said many things that are true today, among them this: "When a man has been helped around one corner of a square and cannot manage the other three, he is unworthy of future assistance."

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.

Why Contractor Wears Derby Hat.

A New York contractor always wears a derby in tunnel work, because it acts as a bumper and protects his head in crowded quarters. A soft hat is little protection when one's head strikes against the timbering of a tunnel.—Engineering Record.

Only One "BROMO QUININE"

To get the genuine, call for full name, LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for signature of E. W. GROVE. Cures a Cold in One Day. Stops cough and headache, and works off cold. 25c.

Windmill of Great Power.

DRY CELL BATTERY USEFUL

Employed in Important and Almost innumerable Ways—its Inventor is Unknown.

For a common and apparently simple little object the dry cell battery has a multitude of uses and plays an important part in the work of man. The automobile, motor boat, wireless telegraphic apparatus, Christmas tree festoons, electric toys and trains, electric engines, local bell, telephone and annunciator systems, miniature lighting equipments, medical batteries and vibrators, electric alarm clocks, burglar alarms, automatic door openers, safe cracking devices, infernal machines in their many forms, devices for setting off dynamite explosions in excavations, the various testing outfits and electric clock service, to say nothing of the divers ways that it is used in scientific experiments, are a few of the most obvious of its applications.

In its manufacture there are about as many processes as are necessary in the making of a tungsten lamp, and the machinery that makes it and compounds the ingredients that go into it is wonderfully interesting. So exact is the formula applied to each shell that when completed a battery will register up to a uniform amperage. The exact origin of the dry battery is uncertain, many inventors having claimed the honor.

Do-do-lax Banishes Pimples

Bad Blood, Pimples, Headaches, Biliousness, Torbid Liver, Constipation, etc., come from Indigestion. Take Do-do-lax, the pleasant and absolutely sure Laxative, and you won't suffer from a deranged Stomach or other troubles. It will tone up Liver and purify the blood. Use it regularly and you will stay well, have clear complexion and steady nerves. Get a 50c. bottle to-day. Money back if not satisfied. All Druggists. Advertisement.

Garden Gains.

Hiram—"Sol Sodbuster claims to have discovered the best way to make money with his garden." Henry—"What's the system?" "This summer he is going to put a house in it." "But isn't he going to raise anything?" "Yes, just as soon as he can he is going to raise the rent."—Youngstown Telegram.

Dizzy? Bilious? Constipated?

Dr. King's New Life Pills will cure you, cause a healthy flow of bile and rid your Stomach and Bowels of waste and fermenting body poisons. They are a Tonic to your Stomach and Liver and tone the general system. First dose will cure you of that depressed, dizzy, bilious and constipated condition. 25c all Druggists.—Advertisement.

Cheerfulness.

What, indeed, does not that word cheerfulness imply. It means a contented spirit, it means a pure heart, it means a kind and loving disposition, it means humility and charity, it means a generous appreciation of others and a modest opinion of self.—Thackeray.

How To Give Quinine To Children.

FEBRILINE is the trade-mark name given to an improved Quinine. It is a Tasteless Syrup, pleasant to take and does not disturb the stomach. Children take it and never know it is Quinine. Also especially adapted to adults who cannot take ordinary Quinine. Does not nauseate nor cause nervousness nor ringing in the head. Try the next time you need Quinine for any purpose. Ask for 2-ounce original package. The name FEBRILINE is blown in bottle. 25 cents.

Salt as Cleaner.

To clear willow furniture scrub each piece well with a coarse brush and water that is strongly saturated with salt, then dry with a soft cloth. Salt not only cleans willowware, but prevents it from turning yellow. Straw matting may be most successfully cleaned in the same way.

Paxtine

A soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed. As a medicinal antiseptic for douches in treating catarrh, inflammation or ulceration of nose, throat, and that caused by feminine ills it has no equal. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been cured say it is "worth its weight in gold." At druggists, 50c. large box, or by mail, The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so so much at so low a price.

This is a time of great events, and you will want the news accurately and promptly. All the countries of the world steadily draw closer together, and the telegraph wires bring the happenings of every one.
No other newspaper has a service equal to that of The World and it relates everything fully and promptly.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World al-

EASY TO LOAD A BIG HOG

With a Bottomless Crate No Lifting or Chute Is Needed and the Matter Is Simple.

The farmer who has never used a bottomless hog crate has a treat coming to him. The man who undertakes to load a 300-pound hog without help and with no regular loading chute has a big proposition on his hands. He can do enough lifting, tugging and pulling to insure a good view of the whole solar system. The crate without a bottom does away with all this.

The plan is simple. The crate should be made of strong, light slats and large enough to cover a full-grown hog. Sides, ends and top should be slatted. There is no end gate, no sliding boards—nothing but a plain, light crate with no bottom.
Put down a few boards, about ten feet long, for a "bridge" from the rear end of the wagon bed to the ground.

Now we are ready to load the hog.
Stand the crate on end and throw a little feed down close to the crate.
Do not try to rush things, but allow the hog to get accustomed to the crate. As soon as the hog is in good position drop the crate over him quickly and carefully to prevent him from running out backward. All there is to do now is simply "walk" the hog up the bridge and into the wagon.—Farm and Fireside.

MISSIVES HAD GOT MIXED

Unfortunate Incident Which Brought Deep Sorrow to the Heart of Lovesick Youth.

A young lady presented her intended with a beautifully worked pair of slippers, and he acknowledged the present by sending her his picture incased in a handsome frame.
He wrote a note with it, and at the same time replied angrily to an oft-repeated dun for an unpaid suit of clothes. He engaged a boy to deliver the package and notes. The young lady received a note in her adored one's handwriting and flew to her room to devour its contents. She opened the missive with eager fingers and read:

"I am getting tired of your everlasting attentions. The suit is about worn out already. It never amounted to much, anyway. Please go to thunder!"

And the tailor was struck utterly dumb when he opened a parcel and discovered a portrait of his delinquent customer, with a note that said:

"When you gaze upon my features think how much I owe you."

When the unfortunate young man called that evening to receive the happy acknowledgment of his sweetheart he was very quickly shown off the doorstep by the young lady's father.

PECK SCORES.

Mrs. Peck—I suppose if we should have war you'd remain at home like a coward?

Peck—My, dear, no one who knows you would call me a coward if I remained at your side.—Boston Evening Transcript.

WORRIES OF A TRAVELER.

Bill—I see while the heart of the elephant is beating 30 times that of a human is pulsating 70.

Jill—Well, I suppose it is because the elephant always knows where to look for his trunk.

RULING PASSION.

Madge—Have you given up golf for good, my dear?

Marjorie—I really couldn't say. I might take it up again if they leveled off the links so one could tango after the ball.—Puck.

SPARING NO PAINS.

"What made you write all those foolish letters?"

"It was the influence of unbounded affection. The foolisher I acted the better that girl seemed to like me."

THEY NEVER LOOK IN.

Deacon—Too many men judge people by their outward appearance.
Parson—Yes; and too many judge the churches in the same way.

WHAT'S COMING TO THEM.

Redd—And do you think they are rivals for her hand?

Greene—No; I think they are ri-

DRIED HERBS IN BOTTLES

Mode of Preparation Is Said to Be Desiccation of Leaves in Hot Stoves or Ovens.

As the delicate flavor of many herbs can be maintained when they have been carefully dried, and as it is only possible to obtain green herbs during certain limited seasons, most of the varieties in common use for culinary purposes can be obtained in the form of dry powder in glass bottles. Among the herbs thus prepared mention may be made of basil, mint, sage, thyme, lemon thyme, marjoram, tarragon, parsley, winter savory and chervil. The mode of preparation is understood to be simple desiccation in hot stoves or ovens of the actual leaves, rejecting the stalks and woody fiber. Certain of the herbs can be had in the form of mixtures suitable for the flavoring of soups or broth, says the London Times. This method of employing herbs for the kitchen is much superior to the old-fashioned plan of suspending them in the shape of bunches to the rafters, a practise which still maintains in country districts. The chief difference made in the desiccation of herbs and that of vegetables is that the former are not blanched or plunged into boiling water or steam, but go into the hot chamber direct, in order to preserve the full flavor. The drying is carried a little further than is customary with vegetables or potatoes by employing a lower degree of heat, but prolonging the stay in the stoves, so that on completion of the operation the herbs can be crumbled into dry powder.

COULDN'T SCARE HIM

Tess—There are microbes in kisses.
Tom—Tut, tut! I've been up against that game so long that I'm germ-proof.

THE UP-TO-DATE BRIDE.

She lives in Cincinnati and there are several thousand of her. The superintendent of schools declares that no girl leaves his "bride-preparatory" course without knowing how to do plain cooking and laundry work, how to find a leak in the water pipe, mend a broken door knob, give "first aid" in a surgical or poisoning case, do marketing, darn stockings, set tables, sweep and dust, and, most important of all, how to conserve and make the most of her husband's income, thus preventing the frightful waste which is said to be the curse of the American household. This surely "sounds good." The model housekeeper, long looked for, may be found in Cincinnati at last.— Leslie's.

THAT SMELL.

Patience—You know, to remove rust from a knife plunge the blade into an onion and leave it for an hour.

Patrice—Yes, but you know there are things worse than rust.

THEIR SERVICE.

"Policemen are very handy to have about, aren't they?"

"Indeed, they are; always ready at a pinch."

READY FOR HIM.

"Madam, I must check your extravagance."

"All right, my dear. You can give me one of the checks now."

WISE DOCTOR.

Mrs. Fushby-Ayling—John, our physician wants to send me to a summer resort for four weeks?

Her husband—I don't blame him.

NATURAL INFERENCE.

"That boy of mine, though I'm not the one to say it, certainly has fetching ways."

MEN IN MIND IN HOPKINSVILLE

People of Prominence In The Pearl City of The Penny-royal.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 55

One of The Hustlers Who Has Helped Put Greater Hopkinsville on The Map.

There is an old saying that "Preachers' sons are the worst boys to be found," but there are exceptions to all rules and this criticism does not always hold good. Hopkinsville has several preachers' sons who have made good in many ways. One of the most prominent and successful business men in the city belongs to this class. In fact he is one of several brothers who from boyhood proved to be born business men. John J. Metcalfe was the fifth son of Rev. V. M. Metcalfe, a widely known minister of the Christian church. He was born at Edgefield Junction, Tennessee, Feb. 22, 1868, and found the whole United States busy celebrating his birthday, a custom that is still kept up. John J. would have been named George Washington, but one of his older brothers had already been named for the father of his country. In 1871 the family moved to Hopkinsville and John J.'s earliest recollections are associated with Hopkinsville, although he is not to the manor born. His first four years in the city were spent on South Main street and at the end of that time he had developed into a school-boy of seven and was already on the lookout for a business opening. He made his first money by selling newspapers and running a fruit stand when he was ten years old. The rattle of the coins in his pocket fired him with an ambition to be a successful business man some day and he started a line of activity that is still bringing results. He stopped work long enough to attend the public schools and finish his education at South Kentucky College, and in 1886, a lusty youth of 18, he plunged into the foundry business with his older brother, Chas. W. Metcalfe, now of Princeton, Ky. Four years later John J. embarked in business for himself at his present stand and for 24 years every succeeding year has been better than the one before. From a small beginning, on borrowed capital, he has by close application, indomitable energy and wide-awake methods, developed his business to large proportions. In 1910 he tore down the house in which he started and replaced it with his present handsome brick building, designed especially for his business, which has since 1907 been limited to mill supplies, business taking the name of John J. Metcalfe Mill Supply Co., Mr. Metcalfe being the sole proprietor. His house supplies a territory extending into several States, and the people have learned to look to him for what they need and when he receives an order they know it will be given immediate attention. No man appreciates better than Mr. Metcalfe the importance of keeping the wheels going, for he is a practical machinist himself and knows just what to do and how to do it, when orders come in. One of his lines is selling water meters all over the South. He is President of "The M. & M. Meter Box Co.," these meter boxes being recognized as the best on the market. In 1911 Mr. Metcalfe was elected to represent the First Ward in the City Council and quickly assumed leadership in one of the most progressive Councils the city ever prospered under. He was too busy to become a politician and did not ask for a second term. In his business Mr. Metcalfe is known so well by his name "John J.," that a letter addressed only to that part of his name would reach him without delay. It has become woven into his business, some of his goods being marked as "John J.'s Best," until his name has become a trademark.

JOHN J. METCALFE.

He was one of the promoters and most liberal contributors in the organization of the Pennyroyal Fair, that has made the most phenomenal record of any local fair in the State. He was on the building committee and took an active interest in the erection of the buildings and since the organization of the company has been a member of the executive committee.

He is also a member and director of the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association. He shows his faith in Greater Hopkinsville by investing in real estate from year to year.

In building up his business, Mr. Metcalfe has worked from the ground up. If necessary now he can do a pair of overalls and build a machine himself. He keeps in close touch with his varied interests and is on the job of furnishing supplies day or night when his patrons need his services. John J.'s hobby is quick service.

AT GRACE CHURCH

Funeral Services of Miss Sallie Wallace Will Be Held To-day.

Miss Sallie Wallace died at 11 o'clock Tuesday night at her home at 1131 Walnut street, aged 85 years. She was a daughter of the late Dr. James B. Wallace and all of her long life had been spent in this county, and for the last 20 years or more she had lived in this city. She was closely related to a number of the most prominent families of the county.

The funeral services will be held at Grace Episcopal church, of which she was a member, this morning at ten o'clock, conducted by Rev. Geo. C. Abbott. The interment will be in Riverside cemetery.

OLD SHOE FOILS PICKPOCKET

Philadelphia Girl, Wedding Guest, With "Good Luck Emblem," Balks Thief.

Only the quick eye and ready arm of Miss Catharine Lee, a young and charming wedding guest, saved William Zeidler, just married, from having his pocket picked as he led his bride from her home, 1706 North Eighth street, where they had just been married, to the automobile which was to whisk the pair away on their honeymoon.

Miss Lee, with other guests, stood outside the door after the wedding, forming a gantlet through which the bridal couple passed in a shower of rice. She had a shoe in her hand, which she intended to throw for good luck. As she was bracing herself for the throw she saw a stranger deftly slip his hand into the bridegroom's hip pocket. She brought the shoe down upon the stranger's face with a shout of "Thief!" which caused the would-be pickpocket to flee, with forty or more guests in pursuit.

After a chase of several blocks the man was caught. — Philadelphia North American.

WORSHIP STRANGE GODS.

A land where strange native gods are still worshiped is the Eket district of southern Rhodesia, "the Land of the Ibibios." In the Kwa Ibo estuary, where the perfect sand is strewn with gleaming shells, come at low tide Eket and Ibene maids who, casting off their robes, kneel on the edge of the foam to pray to the sea goddess, Uman Ibene, to send them husbands. Men, too, come to plead, with arms outstretched, her help in unexpected difficulties or danger. To all who seek her aid the goddess ordains a sacrifice of white cocks and hens, varying in number according to the riches of the petitioner.

THAT'S IT.

Church—What is rhetoric? Gotham—Why, I believe it is something a man has to use when proposing marriage to a Boston school teacher.

Here is an Idea.

Instead of trying to stir up trouble in this old world, let us get busy and help those who are in trouble and see how much we shall enjoy the change.

OFFICIAL CANVASS

Of The Ballots Will Take Place To day With 150 Questioned Votes.

RESULT NOT AFFECTED.

Lafayette Said To Have Returned a Batch of 62 Unsigned Ballots.

The official count of the votes cast in the election Monday will be made to-day by the county board of election commissioners, of which Sheriff Jewell Smith is chairman.

The returns are sealed, but there are reports of irregularities in four precincts that will be passed upon by the canvassing board.

At Lafayette it is said 62 ballots were thrown out of the count, the first ones cast and most of them wet, because the clerk, an inexperienced officer, failed to sign the ballots on the back at first.

Another report is that 47 ballots at Gordonfield and 32 at Longview were returned as questioned and not counted, though the trouble was not explained.

At No. 1 ten ballots were marked with the wooden end of a stencil from which the rubber was broken off, making a circular blot instead of a cross. These ballots were all wet except one and were not counted.

If any considerable number of questioned wet votes are county it may make the country precincts wet, since the county outside of town gave only 35 majority for the drys.

Attorneys familiar with election laws state that unsigned ballots can be legalized by having the clerk come in and sign them and that blurred ballots must be counted if the intent of the voter is shown. However, the questioned ballots would not change the result and the returns may be certified as they are found.

ELECTION AFTERMATH

Several Cases Growing Out of The Heated Campaign.

Several cases growing out of the election were heard in County Court Tuesday. George Coleman, of Brent's Shop, and Ed Willis, col., of Casky, were relieved of charges of having liquor for unlawful purposes.

Tom Hammond, of Bluff Springs, charged with perjury, waived examination and was held to the grand jury.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Geo. A. Bleich, of Owensboro, spent yesterday in the city and was given a cordial welcome by his friends here.

Mrs. Oscar Westendarp, of Monterey, Mexico, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dabney, during the ward disturbance, left this week to join her husband in Monterey.

Hon. Washington Hudson, of Tulsa, Okla., a son-in-law of the late J. B. Dade, is in the city. Mr. Hudson has recently been nominated by the Democrats to represent his county in the Legislature, the nomination being equivalent to an election. He is an attorney at law in Tulsa.

THREE-STORY BUILDING IN RICHMOND COLLAPSES

Masonic Temple Wrecked, But No One Hurt.

Richmond, Ky., Sept. 23.—The large building here known as the Masonic Temple collapsed Saturday. The building was a three-story one. The lower floors were occupied by the R. C. H. Covington Company, clothing and men's furnishings, while the second story was used as a club for the fraternity and a dance hall, while the lodge rooms were located on the third floor. It is not known what caused the collapse of the building, as it was remodeled and modernized about five years ago.

It was located on Main street on the most frequented corner of the city, and it seems almost a miracle that none of the employees were hurt, as the building is now a wreck.

The crash caused much excitement and was heard several blocks away. The building was valued at about $15,000 and owned by the Masonic order. The damage to it will possibly be from $8,000 to $10,000. The Covington Company carried a stock valued at $25,000, all of which is more or less damaged. The clothing company leased the large rooms in the new Clay building and began moving its stock, while the owners of the building set about to repair it.

ABSINTHE SEEN AS EVIL

Pious Old Moor Even Goes So Far as to Describe It as an Invention of Satan.

"Absinthe is an invention of the evil one," earnestly declared an old Moor to whom a trader tried to explain the tyrannous nature of General Lyautey's order forbidding the sale of absinthe in Morocco.

"On its roots he pours the blood of a peacock; then, when the leaves begin to grow, he sprinkles them with the blood of a monkey; then he dips the stalks in the blood of a bear; lastly he mingles with the juice of the plant the blood of a pig."

"So that when the faithful drinks absinthe, at the first glass his appetite awakes, and he arises, proud as a peacock; at the second glass he becomes excited and gesticulates like a monkey; at the third he becomes quarrelsome and spiteful, like a bear; at the fourth he becomes besotted and falls to the earth and rolls like a hog in the mire."

"May Allah protect us, Sidi Lyautey is right."

In that connection it is depressing to note that the saddest state of affairs prevails in Belgium, where absinthe has become practically the national beverage. It has often been asserted that the physique and morals of Belgians make them the least attractive people in Europe.—Exchange.

Confessed Firebug.

Mary Phillips, a colored domestic, has confessed that she started three fires that have occurred at the home of Prof. Cherry, in Bowling Green, within the last few years. She assigns no reason for her desire to burn things. It is evidently a peculiar mania. In her confession she admitted being the perpetrator of only three of six recent fires.

Polo Player Killed.

Captain R. N. Grenfell, the well-known polo player of the Buckingham Yeomanry, attached to the Ninth Lancers, was among the officers killed in action to France. His name appears in the list, under date of Sept. 16, issued by the war office.

Cross-Drayne.

Mrs. Carrie Hern Drayne was married Sept. 16, to Mr. Paul Thomas Cross, of Hillside, Neb. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hern. She has for several years been chief operator at the telephone exchange.

Married In Texas.

Mrs. Mary Dyer, formerly of this city, and W. D. Moore, of Greenville, Texas, were married in the latter place last week. The bride is a sister of Mrs. James Brown and Mrs. W. A. Stewart, of this city.

Will Tell Experience.

Mr. S. W. Anderson will deliver a lecture in Owensboro to-night on his experience in Europe at the breaking out of the war. He spent last summer on the continent.

New Comet.

Cape Town, Sept. 23.—A bright comet which was discovered by the Cape Observatory last Friday night, is now visible to the naked eye. It is near the star Archnar.

To Get Rid of Ants.

Sprinkle the place infested with red pepper or powdered borax or paint with a pure solution of carbolic acid. Follow the trail of the ants to the place of entrance and use the preventive freely.

Verdict of Acquittal.

Walter Drake was tried in county court yesterday on a charge of buying the vote of Same Howe, col. Monday. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

KEPNER-POOL.

Groom of Pittsburg and Bride of Louisville.

Cloyd Kepner, of Pittsburg, Pa., and Miss Sophia Pool, of Louisville, were married here Tuesday morning. Rev. C. H. H. Branch performed the ceremony in his study at Westminster church. Immediately after the marriage the couple left on a short bridal tour and on their return they will make their home in this city. Mr. Kepner is district agent for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O., and Hopkinsville will be his headquarters. The bride is a daughter of Harlin Pool, a well known newspaper man of Louisville.

Episcopal Convocation.

Bowling Green, Ky., Sept. 22.—The convocation of the diocese of Kentucky of the Episcopal church of western Kentucky will be held in Christ Episcopal church in this city on Wednesday and Thursday, September 30 and October 1. Rev. Charles E. Woodcock, bishop of the diocese of Kentucky, of Louisville, with eight clergymen, will attend the convocation.

Monthly savings can be made to earn six per cent interest, net by investing them in stock of the Hopkinsville Building & Loan Association. THOS. W. LONG, Treas. Advertisement.

WHAT FOUR DID.

Quartette of Dry Workers Who Carried Newstead.

One of the surprises of the late campaign was the fact that Newstead went dry. This precinct has one of the heaviest colored votes in the county and was claimed by the wets with entire confidence. The prohibition committee in charge consisted of Tom C. Jones, Will Linn Caudle, John Knight and Frank Caudle, and by some of the hardest work done in the county the quartette succeeded in swinging it into the dry column by a few votes.

Home building should begin now, when money can be gotten for the purpose, by becoming a member of the Hopkinsville Building & Loan Association. Office at First National Bank.
